President's Message

In August, program chair John Smykla, Pat DeLancey, and I met in Louisville for the initial site visit at the Galt House to set up the 1997 program, "Criminal Justice: Research, Education, and Technology." Since the Galt House has large meeting rooms, we will be able to use classroom and roundtable seating instead of the more traditional theatre seating.

We are excited about this new forum for members' presentations. John Smykla describes additional "new" activities in his article "Top Ten Reasons Why You Should Attend the Louisville Meeting" that appears on page one of this issue. John, Pat, and I will travel once again to the Galt House in January 1997 to make all the final decisions regarding ACJS program activities.

The ACJS executive board met in New Orleans in September for the mid-year business meeting. The board approved New Orleans as the site of the annual ACJS meeting for the year 2000.

The board approved the applications of the Rochester Institute of Technology and Columbia College for academic peer review. Other criminal justice programs may wish to consider utilizing the academic peer review as part of their universities five-year evaluations. Please contact Pat DeLancey for more information on this process.

Presidential Travel:

In June, I attended the northeast regional meeting held at Roger Williams

University, School of Law, in Bristol (RI). I enjoyed the opportunity to meet with members and listen to their ideas about the Academy and its future. I also enjoyed meeting with members during the Fall regional conferences. From September 25-27, I attended the midwest regional meeting in Indianapolis (IN), moved on to the southwestern regional meeting in Tucson (AZ), and then back to attend the southern regional meeting in Savannah (GA). On November 1, I attended the western pacific regional meeting on the Queen Mary in Long Beach (CA).

On behalf of the Academy, I was invited to attend the John Jay College of Criminal Justice's conference on criminal justice education from October 3-6 in New York City. At the conference, I participated on a panel delivering a presentation entitled "The ACJS Peer Review: Past, Present, and Future."

ACJS Media Guide:

The Media Guide is now available. Please see page five in this issue for information from Immediate Past President Jay Albanese on receiving copies.

ACJS Membership Directory:

The 1996-97 Directory will be available before Christmas. Please look for it in your mail.

ACJS Executive Board Elections:

Regular members of ACJS will receive their voting materials for the Board elections in November. Please take a few minutes to cast your vote, and return your ballot to the national office.

ACJS Archives:

In preparation for the celebration of the Academy's 35th year at the 1998 annual meeting in Albuquerque, the program will include a collage of photographs and other materials that relate to the history of the Academy. Please contact Pat DeLancey with any materials that you may have.

I look forward to seeing you in Louisville!

The board meeting ran much longer than we expected, so that by the time we got to "new business," everyone was pretty exhausted. However, I was able to inform them that the Division currently is negotiating with Northeastern about the archives and, if a suitable agreement is reached, will deposit the materials there. I noted that at this point you were not asking us for any kind of financial assistance, but may do so in the future. I then asked them to think about two things for the mid-winter meeting (which, BTW, is a great phrase this year since it looks like we'll meet in May): 1) if the ASC as a whole ever decides to archive its materials, and it is housed in a separate location, this would send a very bad symbolic message, and 2) the Executive Board should issue a statement formally giving the project its full support. Again, I pointed out that this would be more of a symbolic than instrumental gesture, but I thought that it would be a very important one.

The issue will be put on the agenda for May. I hope I represented your position accurately.

It was good to see you in Chicago. I'm enjoying the White Trash book immensely (it is nice to have all that material in one place).

Sincerely,
Bob Bursik

hi julie. I left you a phone message but maybe this will work just as well. I've been talking with Kathleen Ferraro of ASU's Women's Studies dept about the possibility of housing the Division's archives there--meaning as part of the collection of the main library. Kathy suggested that I get in touch with Kimball Bouin, your Women's Studies Library Specialist, whom she described as dynamic and very enthusiastic about library work. 602-965-4905.

Would you be able to contact her for me? Please explain that the division has been in existence, formally, since 1984, and that some of the founders and long term members have papers/ documents that could comprise an archive. This is the first major organization of academic women in the area of criminal justice and the main source of gender theory in criminal justice. I am interested in having our papers go to a university such as ASU where there is a strong contingent of faculty working on issues of gender, crime, and justice.

julie: let me know if you need further info at this point. I have no idea what volume of material we have--maybe 2-3 cubic feet. You might want to check out the facilities when you have time, too. Thanks for your help.

Hi,

This is the only email message from you that I have received. Sorry, but I did not get the message early enough to be in my office from 3-5 on friday. I also received your phone messages and will begin looking into the possibility of moving the archives here at ASU. I spoke with Nancy Jurik and she suggested I work with the Women's Studies librarian who should be very helpful. I can not come in tomorrow (monday) and will make time to go to the library Tuesday and see what we can work out. I will leave a message for you--I will be in my office 12:15-2:15 on wednesday and in and out thursday and friday.

Next week, I will be around through wednesday (12/17) and then gone for most of our Christmas Break. If we have trouble getting through, I may try to fax information to you about the archives. Can you send me your fax number?

Thanks & have a pleasant break,

Julie
